BYFICE: No. 15 Quincy Street.

FRIDAY, ARPIL 18, 1873. ONE thousand acres of coal land on Chest River were recently sold to a company for coke operations.

A GREAT suspension of building enterprises is one of the results of the strikes, and the apprehended strikes in New York. Men do not dare to make contracts in the unsettled relations of labor and capital; and the result will be a large force of mechanics without employment, and a greater stagnation of business.

How ENGRADUS were the stealings under the Tammany ring is exemplified by the reduction which the Comptroller has made, of about one million dollars in the advertising bills of New York city. A duplication entirely. Goods contraction of the enormous sum was applied to be some control of the enormous sum was applied to be some control of the enormous sum was applied to be some control of the enormous sum was applied to be some control of the enormous sum was applied to be some control of the enormous sum was applied to be some control of the enormous sum was applied to be set of the enormous sum was advertising bills of New York city. A part of the enormous sum was applied to corrupt papers that people saw, but the in the premium, have to be paid for at 118 greater share went to papers that were owned by members of the ring, and that had no circulation. The names of some of them, and those which received the larger share of the plunder were unknown to the general public.

THE Wheeling INTELLIGENOR stems t think that antipathy to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad had considerable to do Ohio Raifroad had considerable to do with the vote on the constitutional delegate in this county. Viewed from its standpoint it might think so. But we can assure our neighbor that the people of this county do not feel the antipathy to that Read that the people of Wheeling do. Belmont county has been greatly benefitted by this thoroughfare. Wheeling thinks she has not been. Hence they suppose our feelings are the same as theirs. Great mistake.—St. Chairwills Gasetts.

The Gasetts slightly misapprehends us The Gasette slightly misapprehends us

In supposing Ma. Collins' attorneyship for the B. & O. Railroad Company was an element of his weakness as a candidate for the Convention, we did not mean to suggest a hostility on the part of the people of Belmont county to that particular corporation, but an aversion to having persons in the Convention supposed to be in the interest of any railroad corporation There is a profound and wide spread feel ing that railroad corporations are becoming dangerously influential, and a conviction that something must be done to restrain them from further encroachments on the rights of the public. This feeling exists especially in agricultural communi tles, like Belmont county. We supposed that through the operation of this feeling MR. COLLINS' connection with a great railroad prejudiced him injuriously, not, as we have said, because of a feeling against that particular corporation, but ol a feeling against all of its class. Of course, we may be mistaken, and it the Gazette can satisfactorily explain MR. CoL-Lina' surprising defeat in some other way, we shall think we have been.

TAKEN AT THEIR WORD.—Sergeant-at-Arms Ordway, of the House, having re-ceived a large number of letters from members, telling him that they did not intend to draw the amount due them on the salary steal, applied to the First Comp-troller for his opinion and advice. The latter decided that the letters were sufficient to authorize the covering of the money into the Tressury without any further authority. This will be a matter of surprise to a large number, some of whom had said they would not draw their money until the storm abated and the matter had gone out of the public mind. They suppose gone out of the public mind. They sup-posed that they could notify Ordway that they did not intend to draw the money, and that it would thus lie subject to their order for two years, when it would be turned into the Treasury. The Comptrol-ler said the department was very lenient about receiving money, that there were

They had always been too much for him. Then he was interrogated as to the several amounts of money he had paid to individuals to secure their friendly interest; but in this instance, too, he broke utterly down. "You might as well ask me, gentlemen," said he, "to tell how many freight cars ran over the road on a given day, or whether a particular train was on time. I know nothing about details." Buch sublime indifference to details was never heard of before. It would seem that the Erie road has been run on a bed of glittering generalities, or their equivalents in greenbacks.—Graphie.

The Modoc War.—A military officer of high rank said yesterday that he thought popular expectation in regard to the speedy annihilation of the Modocs would of necessity be disappointed, and that he would not be surprised if it takes several weeks to make a finish of them. He says that the cry of "On to be layer." several weeks to make a finish of them. He says that the cry of "On to the lava beds," reminds him of the cry of "On to Richmond," raised at the beginning of the late civil war. He says the lava beds are almost impregnable, and that it would be the height of rashness and folly to send men into them to be shot down by the savages lurking in the caves and fissures. He believes Gen. Gillem is now vigorously besieging the enemy, and that it is quite possible that he will send no dispatches to army headquarters until he has accomplished something decisive.—

THE Chronicle says that "Mr. William Hatcher, who has voted in this township for sixty three years, was at the polls on Monday last." And it might have done him the justice to have said that he never voted in all that time anything else save the Democratic ticket. — St. Glairsville

A statement of that kind might do Mr. HATCHER justice, but we fail to see that it would do him any very great credit.

Views of New York Merchants on the Spring Trade and Busines Pros-pects Generally.

New York merchants are rapidly real-And for merchants are rapidly real-izing the lamentable state of the market, and complain bitterly of the dulless of trade and the high rates demanded for mony. The writer, this morning, had in-terriews with members of several leading dry goods houses, including A. T. Stew art's, A. B. Claffin's, and others. Th substance of the conversations is as fol lows:

"The hopes that the financial embarassments would terminate before the commencement of spring trade, and the reminate before the commencement of spring trade, and the reminate before the commencement of the commencement sumption of navigation, have not been re alized. Even taking into consideration the advance in foreign goods, the quantity of the season's imports are below the av of the season's imports are below the average of former years, and from the known scarcity of stock throughout the country there was a reasonable expectation of a very prosperous spring trade."

"Why have these prospects not been realized?"

"Recovery the most prospect of the property of the prospect of the prospect

"Because the unlooked for advance in to 119, a clear loss of 8 per cent on the original invoices."

"Is there any remedy?"

"Is there any remedy?"

"Yes; if the importers could cover the advance by a corresponding increase in prices, all would be well. But nothing is more difficult to establish than an advance at the commencement of the sesson, as country buyers come prepared to pur-chase at certain rates, and are generally both unable and unwilling to make an ad-vance. This year neither buyers nor sel-afford an advance?"

"Because the monetary stringsnoy has extended all over the interior, and they are forced to buy more closely than they are torced." "Are collections in the interior diffi-cult?"

"Yes; more difficult than for several years. And as country merchants are unable to make their collections, they are ompelled to ask for extensions, which "Can an immediate improvement be expected?"

"Yes, when the immense volume of commodities, now locked up in the West by the winter's severe weather, and valued at not less than $500,000,000, begin to move at not less than $000,000,000 to move forward to the market. But, in the mean-time, the business interest of the whole community must suffer severely, and no recovery is possible that williamake up for the losses alreody sustained."

"Could the Secretary of the Treasury learness matters."

"Could the Secretary of the Treasury improve matters?"
"Not very well. He cannot avoid promoting the interest of one or the other of the rival cliques. If he does nothing, he leaves a clear field for the parties who are speculating for dear money and high gold. If he expands the currency, he plays into the hands of parties who are for a rise in stocks and all kinds of commodities."

What is the reason of this condition

"All these complications are the result of the present irredeemable currency, and the fluctuating, bond buying, gold-selling policy of the Administration. The Gov-ernment had better leave the finances of the country to regulate themselves. It is a pity Senator Sherman's bill for the res-toration of specie payments had not been adopted. Now we seem committed for adopted. Now we seem committed for an indefinite period to the uncertainties arising from the continuance of the presarising from the continuance of the present system."

"Are the railroad monopolies to blame for the present depression?"

"Yery materially. There should be no discriminating charge. The railroads are virtually public highways, the property of the nation, and Congress ought to remove the heavy protective duties on railroad iron and other material used in the construction of rolling stock; then we should have cheap railroads, cheap irright and no embargo on business."

"What about he trade at present?"

"What about the trade at present?"
"Well, the best part of the scason has gone, and jobbers find that the consumers for two years, when it would be are not taking goods in such quantities as into the Treasury. The Comptrol did the department was very lenient and, as a consequence, the April trade receiving money, that there were prohibiting the receipt of money, was more difficult to get it out.—
